¹IHN is an organization which, through ownership or formal agreements, aligns healthcare facilities in order to deliver integrated healthcare services by improving quality and reducing costs to a defined geographic area. These organizations are formed with the intent to market themselves as one unit to payers.

²Verispan rated IHNs with respect to their performance level and degree of integration based on the following categories: integration, outpatient utilization, integrated technology, hospital utilization, financial stability, services and access, contract capability, and physicians.

³Affiliated facilities include hospitals, diagnostic imaging centers, home health agencies, managed care organizations, medical group practices, nursing homes, outpatient surgery centers, and several others.

⁴Outpatient visits include hospitals, home healthcare, diagnostic imaging centers and medical group visits.
